If you win the scholarship under the circumstance that you haven't obtained a Pre-Admission Letter, potential admission-adjustment made by the China Scholarship Council to another university or to another major other than your chosen ones is possible. For example, if you have applied for university A with major B, but you haven't obtained a Pre-Admission Letter from university A for its major B, and if you win the scholarship, you might be auto-transferred by the China Scholarship Council to another university with similar major like B. If you have obtained a Pre-Admission Letter from university A for its major B, usually it means that the spot in this university and this major is temporarily reserved for you till the decision of the Scholarship is announced, in this situation, if you win the scholarship, the possibility of auto-transfer is very low.
